Dear Joshua,

Thank you very much for your letter and reprints. I read your letter to the following meeting of the Genetics Seminar and they were much impressed. I too consider the phage resistance evidence a fine second line of evidence for your thesis. Cytological evidence seems to me not essential since your additional data really prove that recombination takes place. However you should not feel that cytological evidence is entirely useless, but rather regard it as a desirable additional line of evidence for which someone should be looking to absolutely clinch your case and make it perfect.

See you in Boston,

Yours

Lotti Stein
